SALEM, March 11, 1865.

The capital is becoming enlivened the last day or so by the arrival of lawyers, clients, witnesses, jurors and sundry people assembling to attend the spring term of the Circuit Court, and considerable interest is excited by the expected trial of George Beal and George Baker, should the Grand Jury find a true bill against them for the murder of the old man Delany, which will be one of the most interesting cases ever brought before an Oregon court. Judges Strong and David Logan, Esq., are retained on the part of the accused, and the probability is that an effort will be made to remove the cause to some other county. There are some other matters of interest to come before the court.

VAROUS BOUNTY BONDS.

Ex-Senator Harding has been freely ventilating his opinion about certain matters since his arrival here, especially denouncing as unconstitutional the bills passed by the Legislative Assembly granting extra pay to discharged soldiers of the Oregon cavalry, and bounty bonds for volunteers to encourage enlistments in the infantry and cavalry. These bills he pronounces void and of no effect, with the prediction, I am assured by one who heard him, that they will never be paid. To this opinion, I am also informed, the Mephistophelian Bush offers an animated dissent, and the question of constitutionality or non constitutionality is debated freely and somewhat fiercely at times by parties interested in "bounty bonds" speculation. All this is very interesting and sounds well enough, but there are those who think they discern the [illegible] of a cunning individual peering out of the fence, and suspect that this is a "little game" made up by the bounty bond clique of holders, to depreciate the market value of a purchasable commodity, and secure more sales at a lower figure, and perhaps, to enable the speculative gent who saw a miller flit away with some $3,000 or $4,000 of his gold, to become even on the loss. This opinion is of more force, as a military gentleman at Vancouver heard this constitutional critic declare, his intention to purchase these same bonds.

A GLANCE AT SALEM.

Times here are dull enough at present, and they could not be otherwise in such dreadful weather, but prospects were never better. Much building and improvement will take place this present spring. Salem will keep pace with the wealth and improvement of the State, and while Portland will flourish as the greatest centre of trade and commerce, this place will be one of the great manufacturing towns, and have considerable benefit, also, from the thriving University located here, which promises not only to add beauty and attraction to the place, by the presence of the handsome edifices it rears, but also to add a healthy tone to the society of the seat of the Government.

THE MINING INTERESTS IN THE CASCADE RANGE.

Already the hardy prospectors are at work on the "White Bull," and Angus McDonald, the discoverer of that ledge, reports having struck it rich lower down the mountain side, south of the discovery, on the "Santiam Company's" ground. This makes quite a distance that this ledge has been traced and worked, always with success. "Old Mac," who discovered the lode, and bestowed its not over euphonious name upon it, is determined to work the thing through, to the satisfaction of the other owners and his own profit, and with all his Scotch persistence we prophesy he will succeed. In connection with these Santiam mines it is interesting to remember that the Indians on the Warm Springs Reservation, located over the mountains east from here, brought in to the Agency last fall, specimens of quartz, rich in gold, found by them on the eastern slope not far from the headwaters of the Santiam. All these incidents go to make up the fact that rich ledges are in those mountains, besides those already discovered, and the Cascade Range may in time be a reliable supply of wealth to the whole State of Oregon.

NOT A CORPORATION.

That interesting set of chaps who own, run and consistently blaspheme against decency in the columns of the Arena, went into court this morning pretending to believe themselves a corporation, and came out with a lessening of their claims down to the size of a joint stock company. That's what they are, for they never properly incorporated, never having any stock book for one item. The result is of course, a good thing for the hands, who, instead of having a rotten corporation in their debt, find that sundry sums are due them from substantial cash customers like John F. Miller and Jo Smith, shareholders in some good things as well as in this which is of no account. The errand boy of that would-be incorporation left it a few days since—couldn't pay even an errand boy, I am told—but fortune smiles even upon this "little devil," and he will probably get the "grand cash" earned during his late probationary state of devilment. As the rats run away from a sinking ship, facts are elucidated of quite an interesting nature. Asahel Bush was too smart to own anything in the concern, but not so smart but that printers have frequently "set up" Ilethout a ticket his handwriting. So much for Asahel's wit.

A STATE DOCUMENT.

In the office of the Secretary of State there is filed an interesting and important document, only received last Saturday by mail. It is the copy of the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States, intending to abolish slavery within the National bounds. This bears the great seal of the United States, and the signature of W. H. Seward, attesting the correctness of the copy and the fact of its passage through Congress. With this seal and signature for authority, the State of Oregon will some time act upon the important measure contemplated, and its vote may secure the success of the amendment, but under the present circumstances of its rejection by Delaware and Kentucky, it may not be necessary that an extra session should be called to take immediate action upon it here.

I shall write to-morrow as to the findings of the Grand Jury and other subjects of general interest. Up to the present time no indictment has been found against Baker and Beale, though they are examining the case.

Taxation.

It would perhaps be difficult to frame a limit beyond which taxes may not be laid upon a people, provided the assurance is felt that the money so raised will not be squandered or misapplied. Nor would it be easy to say with certainty what hardships or sacrifices a people will not consent to endure, or will not even subject themselves to, when such a course accords with their notions of the necessity of maintaining their ancestral glory, or when interest joined with pride, is actively urging them to persist in the endeavor to accomplish their designs.

It requires a certain degree of intelligence, and that no mean one, to qualify a man to perform the part of a good citizen in a country, all the branches of whose government are more or less completely under the control of the people. We should naturally expect among those least inclined to reflection, very much reluctance in complying with the requirements, or in providing for the needs of society. When large taxes are laid [illegible], it requires the exercise of a very considerable amount of reason and faith to enable some who are obliged to pay them, to understand that the process by which they are under the necessity of parting with their money, is altogether just and fair. Be the necessities of Government ever so great, to some, heavy taxation will seem the climax of injustice and oppression; to many it will seem the instrument of extortion or an unfair method of depriving them of a portion of the proceeds of their own labor. The equivalents which organized society renders in return for the contributions of its members for its support, are often little thought of, as is frequently the case with the commonest blessings we enjoy. The assurance of personal security and the protection of the rights of private property are the returns which society makes to each individual, as such, in consideration of the sum he is asked to pay for the support of his Government. Viewed in a proper light, any amount of taxes likely to be assessed against any people, cannot be deemed exorbitant when the mind results back to advantages that a securely established political society enables us to enjoy.

One reason why the payment of large taxes for National purposes produces disquietude in the minds of many, is found in the fact that the wants and uses of Government are not properly understood and Government itself not properly appreciated. The mind of man first lays hold of those things which present themselves through the instrumentality of the senses. Now, Government is a kind of abstraction. To many minds, one like that of our country, is a sort of myth. In ordinary times its operations are scarcely observable, the privileges it secures are taken no notice of, and as a consequence, the necessity of paying money to support it will sometimes come near to be thought a burden. When the mind is educated to such a degree that it yields to the influence of enlightened and patriotic impulses, and discards the views that are inculcated by the sordid passions alone, then a man is qualified to rationally fulfil the functions of a citizen. He is then prepared to set country above self, and is ready to return a cheerful, implicit and ungrudging obedience to the requirements of the law. When he properly comprehends the structure of political society he will see the necessity of supporting it. But if one lives merely for himself, and subordinates the good of country to his own selfish ends and purposes, it is not to be wondered at that he thinks the obligations of society oppressive.

Of Government, revenue is the indispensable supporter. No reasonable person will cavil at the fact that our expenditures have of late been so large. We are brought to decide whether we prefer to pay taxes to support the Government, or to have no Government at all. Among men of earnest loyalty, but one answer can be given.

Editorial Correspondence.

SALEM, March 15, 1865.

In common with yourselves, we are having one of those interminable storms, peculiar to the month of March. Salem cannot rival Portland in muddy weather, but at present Salem succumbs to the muddy influences, and it is disagreeable getting about. So let me devote a little space to what every body in Oregon has, or ought to have, an interest in.

THE GROUNDS FOR PUBLIC USES.

The Commissioners appointed by the last Legislature, have purchased 117 acres of ground of Mr. L. Savage, Esq., for locating thereon the State Penitentiary and Insane Asylum. This land is situated about one and a half miles east of the town, upon Mill Creek, which runs through it, affording ample water power for all uses. The land, which is in good part covered with oak timber, can be easily cleared; is very rich soil, and is really worth—with the water front—the price given for it by the State, which was $5,000.

THE PENITENTIARY.

This will be located on Mill Creek, at a convenient distance from town, while near enough for all practical purposes. The great value of the location is the presence of a great and easily controlled water-power. Mill Creek runs short of water in the summer time, but the enterprise of the Willamette Woolen Manufacturing Company has supplied the lack, by leading the water of the Santiam, which empties into the Willamette about ten miles above Salem, by a cut from that stream, into Mill Creek, thus affording them the great amount of water they use to run their woolen and flouring mills, and intend to contract for other manufacturing purposes in the future. Of course, Mr. Savage had the control of the water running through his farm, even if supplied in this way. But the State Commissioners have contracted with the Factory Company, and it is agreed that the full use of the water shall belong to the State, and that a supply for the use of the Insane Asylum, shall be appropriated also, which would be a waste, as the Asylum will be located at a little distance from the creek, and the water will not return to it. In compensation for those privileges, the Company have a right to take from above the dam to be erected by the State, sufficient water to bring down to the town, for its supply, whenever they want, to introduce the water of the Santiam into Salem. The use of the sufficient water power will be a great advantage to the State, and enable it to carry on considerable manufacturing by the aid of convict labor, and to make the Penitentiary pay its own way.

THE INSANE ASYLUM.

This will be built upon a bit of rising ground, beautifully inter-persed with growing oaks, while sufficient ground has been purchased to give the unfortunate occupants outdoor employment and occupation, which is an important feature in their successful treatment. The intention is to supply the Asylum with water from the creek, though the building will be some distance off, and on rising ground; still the fall can be obtained at the dam, with the use of a hydraulic ram, will throw quite an amount of water to the top of the building, and insure an abundant supply. Messrs. Hawthorne & Loryea have such an one at work to lift the water from a spring in front of the present Asylum at East Portland, which supplies all their wants. Any one who has visited the Asylum without observing the practical working of the hydraulic ram I am describing, has missed what to me was a great pleasure. The general opinion is that the Commissioners have bargained well for the State, and secured a most eligible spot for the State Buildings.

DATES TO MARCH 15.

Sherman across the Pedee.

NEW YORK, March 13.—The Tribune's Wilmington correspondent of the 7th says: Advices deemed trustworthy state that Sherman's army had passed into North Carolina, at least by the 4th. The rebels under Hardee reported lying on two sides of the Pedee, which river Sherman had successfully crossed, placing himself between Hardee and Beauregard.

Rebel Soldiers wish to Abandon the Cause.

NEW YORK, March 13.—The Times' Shenandoah correspondent says: Among the papers found in Early's baggage was a letter to Jeff Davis in reply to the petition of soldiers to have [illegible] was brought to a close. They had fought four years and accomplished nothing. Davis replied [illegible] character [illegible]. He simply expressed hope that [illegible] does not represent the feeling of a majority of his army.

Piratical Attempts of the Rebels.

NEW YORK, March 13.—A bold attempt by parties to capture the American steamer Saxonia was made on the night of the 4th in the harbor of Havana, which was foiled. It was repeated the next night, when with assistance of the authorities, about 25 men were captured, but upon being taken ashore they were liberated.

The steamer Fuaco had been receiving arms, but for what purpose is not known.

The steamer Orizon [illegible] the crew to [illegible] but has been detained in port.

The pirate Moffat had a dinner given him at Havana.

Federal Movement in Louisiana.

CAIRO, March 13.—A few days ago General Bailey made a forward movement from Baton Rouge through Louisiana and Mississippi, with about three thousand cavalry well supported with artillery. When last heard from he had captured Clinton, La.

Capture of Noted Guerrillas.

LOUISVILLE, March 15.—An expedition of fifty men of the 30th Wisconsin sent from [illegible] on Saturday, surrounded yesterday morning a barn in Webster, Meade County, containing Sue Munday, Magruder, and Henry Medkiff, after some resistance, in which one of our men [illegible] and the fourth mortally wounded.

Shenandoah Valley.

HEADQUARTERS, the 9th.—To J. C. Breckinridge, Secretary of War:—Gen. Rosser reports that on March 6th, with a few of his men, he attacked the enemy near Harrisonburg, Va., who were guarding prisoners taken at Waynesboro, and captured a few prisoners. On the morning of the 7th he again attacked them near Reed's Hall, having detained them for a day and night at the river, and compelled them to retire in haste, abandoning one piece of artillery and their ambulances. He also forced them a good deal, and enabled a good many of our men to escape.

Rebels Report Kilpatrick Defeated.

CITY POINT, March 13.—To Stanton:—The following was taken from to-day's Richmond papers:

HEADQUARTERS, March 10.—To Breckinridge, Secretary of War:—General Wade Hampton attacked Kilpatrick at daylight this morning, and drove him back [illegible], taking his guns, wagons, many horses and several hundred prisoners, and relieving a great number of our own men who had been captured. The guns and wagons could not be brought off for the want of horses. Many of the enemy were killed and wounded. Our loss was not heavy. Lieut. Col. J. S. King was killed and Brig. Gen. Hume, and Cols. Kugan and Morrison wounded. (Signed) [illegible]

Severe Fighting in North Carolina.

WEST FORK, N. C., March 10.—To Grant: The enemy made a heavy attack on our center and left to-day, but was decidedly repulsed with heavy loss. His dead and wounded were taken from the field. We also took several hundred prisoners. Our loss was small. Couch is only twelve miles from here to-night, and will be up early in the morning. We took prisoners from Lee's and Stewart's corps. They say two corps are here and that the rest of Johnston's army is coming.

(Signed) SCHOFIELD.

NEW YORK, March 13.—The Newbern, N. C. correspondent under date of March 11th, says:

Some of the heaviest fighting that we have seen since the corps commanded by Gen. Cox reached the vicinity of Kingston occurred on Friday, the 10th. The enemy had evidently learned that Couch, with a portion of the Twenty-third Corps was not far off and would soon join Cox, and this urged them to extraordinary desperation. They charged again and again upon our ranks, making 10 or 12 separate charges through the day. Generally they spent their fury on the left, but sometimes they would charge on the entire line, evidently hoping that the momentum of so large a force would break down everything. Our men however stood their ground nobly, as attested by the piles of slain and dying rebels before our works in various directions. The enemy also fought with a valor worthy of a better cause. On Friday night, the 10th, and Saturday morning, the 11th, Couch's forces came up from toward Wilmington and effected a junction with Cox, which gave us the advantage of course, of which the rebels were not slow to become informed, so they at once began to fall back, abandoning all further opposition this side of Neuse River. They are now on the north side of the river with the bridge that crosses over to Kingston partially burned. The much talked of ram Neuse is also partially destroyed.

Our forces followed them up vigorously, and will, doubtless, prepare to cross the river at once by means of pontoons, or by relaying new timbers over the old bridge for [illegible] to pass over. I apprehend there will be no difficulty now in repelling the rebels back from any point where they may see fit to make a stand.

The U. S. Consul not Ordered from Matamoras.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The reports current for a few days past that the U. S. Consul has been ordered to leave Matamoras, are without foundation.

Our Consul, Pierce, resigned his office last year and the subsequent closing of the Consulate was a matter of choice, in view of the complication incident to the war in Mexico, and the blockading of the Rio Grande.

The U. S. Government has since that time continued to be represented at Matamoras, by a commercial agent instead of a Consul. This class of officers have no political functions, and don't require any official recognition by the Government of the country in which they reside.

New Hampshire Election.

CONCORD, N. H., March 15.—The election for State officers, members of Congress and Legislature, took place to-day. The returns received thus far, indicate the election of Smyth, Union candidate for Governor, by a good majority. Marston, Union man, is elected to Congress in the first district, and Patterson and Rollins are re-elected. This is a Union gain of one member.

Sheridan's Movements—Panic at Richmond.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The Times' additional says it is probable that Sheridan has moved from Columbia to join Grant by crossing the James river and south side railroad. Returned Union prisoners who reached Annapolis to-day direct from Richmond, communicate some interesting intelligence in relation to affairs at Richmond and Sheridan's movements.

On Saturday night last, Richmond was thrown into intense excitement by the announcement that Sheridan was near the city. All the alarm bells were rung, all the Home Guards and every available man that could be spared, hurried off to repel the Yankees, who were said to be at Beaver Mill Aqueduct on James river, some twenty miles from the city, destroying the canal.

The excitement continued all night and increased to a panic throughout Sunday down to Monday morning, the 13th, when he left the alarm still prevailed. It was understood that Sheridan had succeeded in destroying the Aqueduct, blowing it off with gunpowder. It would take at least six months to repair the damage done.

During Sunday afternoon, the 12th, Rosser's division passed Castle Thunder in great haste on their way to meet Sheridan. There was a story at the Aqueduct [illegible] of Sheridan [illegible] the James and strike the Danville Railroad near the coal fields where there is an extensive bridge to destroy, and then complete the destruction of the communications of Richmond, and then make a junction with Grant.

Movements [illegible] of [illegible] for the abandonment of Richmond had been progressing for some time.

Heavy machinery for manufacturing [illegible] had been removed, and [illegible] percussion cap manufactory.

The carpenters [illegible] work filling a large government order for packing boxes.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The Times' army of the Potomac special dispatch of the 12th says: There is no military news. The fine weather gives prospect of a movement.

It is pretty well established that another considerable portion of Lee's army, comprising Mahone's division left our front last night. It is supposed to have been sent to arrest the movements of Sherman.

Further Particulars about the Fighting around Kinston.

NEW YORK, March 13.—The Herald's Washington special says: A letter from Schofield's headquarters dated Newbern, 11th, says: This

[illegible] our front [illegible] was repulsed with considerable slaughter [illegible] 600 killed, wounded and prisoners [illegible] We have [illegible] and wounded [illegible]

[illegible] supplies are abundant [illegible] The Sanitary Committee has at Newbern $100 worth of supplies, and is loading [illegible] vessels for the same destination. Newbern [illegible] be made a depot for Sanitary supplies [illegible] in North Carolina.

The Herald's correspondent [illegible] on the 11th, gives the following account of the fight [illegible] on Wednesday [illegible] consisting of Hoke's division [illegible] unexpectedly and furiously upon us [illegible] of two regiments [illegible] were flanked [illegible] numbers. [illegible] Gen. Carter's corps fought desperately [illegible] was exhausted. [illegible] here, Col. Savage, of the 12th New York cavalry [illegible] made a detour on the rear and captured [illegible] prisoners. The same afternoon a dash was made on the right, which was repulsed without loss [illegible] Capt. Fisk, of the 12th New York cavalry [illegible] Capt. [illegible] one Napoleon gun. We [illegible] 240 prisoners during the day [illegible] Thursday morning the 9th, Mallory [illegible] his original position and determined to hold it [illegible]

The enemy charged upon him three times in the afternoon, and were repulsed each time with heavy loss.

[illegible] all along the whole line [illegible] The [illegible] breastworks having been erected and [illegible] through the night.

On the evening of the 9th and [illegible] morning of the 10th, the rebels [illegible] which urged them to [illegible] afterwards [illegible] necessitated [illegible] speedy [illegible] again [illegible] amidst the roar of our musketry and cannon which [illegible] through the night [illegible]

They drove our skirmishers [illegible] to the breastworks [illegible] bounding back [illegible] the morning of the 10th [illegible] other dash [illegible] we took from them [illegible] most. From [illegible] and yesterday afternoon [illegible] that we [illegible] in a handsome [illegible] engaged [illegible]

We have probably taken [illegible] prisoners [illegible] Our entire loss from the commencement in killed, wounded and prisoners [illegible] 2,000.

NEWBERN, N. C., March 12.—[illegible] Neuse [illegible] the bridge over that stream [illegible] they also destroyed [illegible] which was guarding [illegible] tearing toward [illegible] to rebuild the bridge [illegible] Johnston [illegible] to remain in Kinston long [illegible] Deserters and refugees continue to come into our lines. Our troops are in fine spirits over the prospect of meeting Sherman soon, who has opened communication with Wilmington from Fayetteville and sends word that he [illegible] and marching on. We expect to hear [illegible] news from him in a few days.

Sheridan Passes Around Richmond.

NEW YORK, March 14.—It has already been reported that the defense of Fort [illegible] by [illegible] was a very brave one, and resulted in finally obliging the rebels to retreat. There were various reports at City Point and in Washington, concerning Sheridan's movement. One says he entered Grant's lines north and east of Richmond, while another says he was kept to the southward, just west of Richmond.

The Herald's Washington special says: No doubts are entertained here that Sherman has reached Fayetteville without encountering any [illegible] except cavalry skirmishes. He will be joined at Fayetteville by Schofield [illegible]

Direct communication with Sherman [illegible] notwithstanding the boasts of the Richmond papers, [illegible] that they cannot stop his progress.

The Herald's Washington special says: The military situation is said to be more promising than at any period during the war. Richmond papers of to-day are filled with doleful comments on the condition of affairs, which they represent as being desperate. Sheridan, they admit, has played the mischief with their avenues of supplies, and fears are expressed that he will reach Burke's Station unopposed and destroy the last link between Richmond and anywhere else. It is believed here that Sheridan has already passed Burke's station, the junction of the Petersburg and Richmond, and Richmond and Danville roads, and gone either to Sherman or Grant. It is [illegible] want the trouble of cutting the South Side road, and leaves to Lee the alternative of submission or of [illegible] already depleted force and opening Richmond to Grant. Richmond papers of the 13th state that the rebel Congress, which was to adjourn last week, has at the request of Jeff Davis, postponed adjournment. He informed them that he expected to have something important to lay before them.

The Richmond Whig says: Though it is well known that there is a Yankee cavalry force raiding through some of the counties west of Richmond, on the Central Railroad, under Sheridan, the War Department deem it inexpedient to publish anything concerning their movements.

From Sherman and Schofield—Sherman Reaches Fayetteville.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Dispatches direct from Sherman and Schofield were received this morning. Sherman's dispatch is dated the 8th, at Laurel Hill, North Carolina. He says: We are all well and have done finely. Details are for obvious reasons omitted. Schofield, in his dispatch dated the 12th, says: On the night of the 10th, near Southard Creek, Bragg was fairly beaten, and during the night he retreated across the Neuse, at Kingston, and now holds both banks of the river at that place.

Signed, STANTON.

FORTRESS MONROE, March 14.—The steamer Champion arrived to-day from Wilmington, on the 11th, bringing some intelligence respecting the movements of Sherman's forces on the morning of the 11th. Scouts from Sherman reached Wilmington with news that Sherman had reached Fayetteville, N. C., and was camped in that immediate vicinity, quietly resting and preparing for another march northward.

Foreign.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The steamer Hansa from Liverpool March 12th, has arrived.

The London Times says: The public have fully digested the official intelligence of the Confederate proposition of terminating the American war by a combined attack of the belligerents on some foreign power, most probably England rather than France.

We must admit that the scheme of policy which the Confederate envoys seemed anxious to favor, showed considerable ingenuity and regard for the Confederate interests. By the time the extensive policy had been carried into execution and ended, the Federals would have become accustomed to live without the Confederates, having in the Southern republic only a kindred state and nation.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—The festivities of to-day have been a splendid demonstration. The procession extended the entire length of Montgomery street. MEETING OF THE COMMON COUNCIL.—The regular weekly meeting of the Common Council was held at the Council Chamber at eight o'clock last evening.

The following members were present: Councilmen Cross, Bennett, Starr, Graham, Frazer, Robertson and [illegible], Messrs. McCraken and Gilmore. Mayor Failing presiding. The records of the last meeting were read and approved.

The petition of J. [illegible] to purchase a portion of Market Block, was read, and on motion, was indefinitely postponed.

The Committee on accounts and current expenses reported favorably on the claim of H. H. Pittock, and a warrant ordered drawn on the appropriate Fund for $7[illegible].

The Committee on streets and public property reported favorably by ordinance on the petition of P. Raleigh and others to improve Washington street, from 10th to first; a motion to adopt the report was lost; the motion was then reconsidered and the report adopted. The same Committee reported on the remonstrance of the property-holders on Front st., and recommend proposition to pave Front street with cobble stone be abandoned by the Council. Here a lengthy discussion sprung up in relation to the merits of various kinds of street improvements, after which the resolutions were recommitted to the Committee on Streets and Public Property with instructions to report at the next session of the Council.

The remonstrance of A. B. Hallock was taken from the table and indefinitely postponed.

An ordinance appropriating $1,400 to pay the indebtedness of the city existing prior to first day of December, 1864, was read the first and second time.

An ordinance authorizing the placing of stone monuments in certain streets was read the first and second time.

An ordinance authorizing the grading and macadamizing of Washington street, from Tenth to First, was read the first and second time.

The ordinance appropriating $2,751 to purchase Willamette Engine Company's engine and apparatus was taken up. Councilman Clark's motion to amend by inserting $1,500 was lost. The ordinance was then placed upon its final passage. Mayor Failing gave notice that he would not sign the ordinance if it passed in its present form.

Councilman Starr was excused from voting, as he was one of the stockholders in the engine. The ordinance was lost on the final vote—yeas, 2; nays, 2.

Rule 28 was suspended, and the ordinance appropriating $4,000 was taken up and placed on its final passage—carried, yeas 6.

The same rule was again suspended, and the ordinance relating to the placing of stone monuments, was taken up and passed.

On motion, Council adjourned.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.—According to most authorities, St. Patrick, the patron Saint of Ireland, was a Scotchman. He was born near the site of Kilpatrick at the mouth of the Clyde, in the year 372. At the age of 16 years, he was carried captive to Ireland by a band of marauders, and in a short time after escaping from them, returned to Scotland. Being captured a second time, and again escaping to his native country about the year 402, he resolved to become a Missionary among the Irish, and in pursuance of that purpose was ordained in Scotland, and shortly afterwards was made a Bishop, when he proceeded to the field of his labor, and his preaching is said to have been attended with most extraordinary effect, historians giving him the credit of having made a general conversion of the people to his faith. A popular legend ascribes to him the banishment of all venomous reptiles from Ireland, by means of his Crozier or Staff, which is supposed to be still kept with great veneration. The Roman Catholic Church having canonized him after his death, the funeral festival takes place on the 17th of March. Yesterday being the anniversary of St. Patrick's canonization, our Irish societies celebrated it with their usual good taste. At one o'clock A. M., a deputation of the Portland Hibernian Society and the Fenian Brotherhood, headed by the Portland Brass Band, proceeded to Vaughn's Wharf, where to the tune of St. Patrick, they received the Vancouver Hibernian Society, which they conducted back to their Hall. A procession of the whole being then formed, they proceeded to the Catholic Church to attend "Mass." After "Mass" the procession was re-formed, when they proceeded to the Hall and listened to an interesting oration delivered by S. J. McCormick, Esq. The procession was again re-formed, and after parading the principal streets of the city, sat down to a sumptuous dinner, where the flow of wit and humor was unbounded. The day's enjoyment was added by a splendid ball in the evening.

FRUIT TREES AT A BARGAIN.—Sheriff Stitzel informs us that any one wishing fruit trees and shrubbery, which were not all sold at Sheriff's sale yesterday, can have them by calling at the Court House Block, at Mr. Thomas Pritchard's old residence, and taking them away before Wednesday next. Here is a rare chance for farmers, gardeners, &c., of obtaining fruit trees, etc., by a very little exertion.

RECORDER'S COURT.—In the Recorder's Court yesterday Jeremiah Buckley was fined ten dollars and costs for disorderly and boisterous conduct, all of which he paid and was discharged. James Galloon, charged with the same offense, was also mulcted in the same amount; but unfortunately, not having the needful, he was sentenced to languish for four days in durance vile.

NEW BOOK.—We have been shown a copy of a new book by O. J. Victor, entitled, "A History of American Conspiracies," and from a cursory examination of its contents, are inclined to think that it is a production of considerable merit and value. The book is a historical review of all the great conspiracies against the country down to the year 1860. Mr. Sale, the Agent, will canvass the city for subscribers next week.

SAILED.—The steamship Oregon left San Francisco on Wednesday.

WEEKLY COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

PORTLAND, March 17, 1865.

Trade has been quiet for the week, but is inclined to be much more active to-day. We have no changes to note in prices generally. Bacon has a steady sale at 22 cents, and is held quite firm at these prices, including sides and hams.

From first hands there is nothing doing. Grain and flour remains unchanged.

Soothing and Bracing.—There is no preparation in existence which has such a soothing effect in cases of nervous excitement as

DR. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

Although the fame of this renowned invigorant rests mainly on its astonishing cures of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, and intestinal disorders, it is equally efficacious in nervous complaints. Thousands of ladies resort to it as a remedy for hysteria, fluttering of the heart, nervous headache, vertigo, general debility and all periodic disturbances and derangements to which their sex is subject. It cheers and lightens the depressed mental powers as well as strengthens the body, and its use is never followed by any unpleasant reaction.—Sold by Druggists and dealers everywhere. [illegible]

The Reason why so many Die with Consumption, is because they neglect to use the proper remedy in season. When the system is first attacked with a cough, oppression of the chest, or seated pains in the breast, Allen's Lung Balsam will cause the phlegm to raise, heals the irritated parts, and restores the system to health. For sale by
SMITH & DAVIS, Agents,
Portland, Oregon.

Also, by the Dealers in Family Medicines generally.

Brandreth's Vegetable Pills.—This medicine, of enduring efficacy, is justly prized as a corrector of all disorders of the stomach and bowels, the common symptoms of which are costiveness, spasms, loss of appetite, sick headache, giddiness, sense of bloating after meals, dizziness of the eyes, drowsiness and cramping in the stomach and bowels. These symptoms being suffered to remain, a torpid state of the liver supervenes, and all the horrors of dyspepsia are experienced. Every function of the frame is to a certain extent prostrated. But a little perseverance in the use of BRANDRETH'S PILLS will even restore the system from this state of misery. Two or three doses will convince the afflicted of their salutary influence. The stomach will readily regain its strength, a healthy action of the liver will again take place, and instead of listlessness, heat, pain and jaundiced appearance, activity, strength and renewed health will be the blessed result. Brandreth's Pills are sold at 25 cents a box, enveloped in full directions. Purchase none unless my private Government stamp is on the box—see upon it "B. Brandreth" in white letters.

Cure Your Cold, Save Your Lungs.

NEWELL'S
PULMONARY SYRUP

HAS

CURED THOUSANDS!

And it will Cure You!

"A Cough is generally the effect of a Cold, which has either been improperly treated or entirely neglected. When it proves obstinate there is Always reason to fear the consequences,

as this shows a weak state of the lungs, and is often the forerunner of Consumption."—Buchanan's Domestic Medicine.

STOP THAT COUGHING!

Some of you can't, and we pity you. You have tried every remedy but the one destined, by its intrinsic merit, to supercede all similar preparations. It is not surprising you should be reluctant to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure; but

Pulmonary Syrup!

Is really the VERY BEST remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of people in California and Oregon have been already benefited by its surprising curative powers.

WHAT KILLED HIM?

Dr. Hall, in his "Journal of Health," speaking of the death of Washington Irving, asks the above question, and adds: "He might have remained with us for some years to come, had it not been for advice kindly intended, no doubt, but given in thoughtlessness and reckless ignorance."

He Had a Cold!

Which, by some injudicious prescription, had been converted into asthma." Let me say to Dr. Hall that that "prescription" was not

NEWELL'S
PULMONARY SYRUP.

KEEP IT IN THE HOUSE, use it freely, give it to your children upon the slightest indications of a Cold, and you will think and speak of it as all do who have become acquainted with its merits.

MILLARD & VAN SCHUYVER.

The Professor Marrying a Cook.

Some years since, when I was in college, we had amongst our "faculty," a curious personage, whom every one regarded with considerable respect, and yet as a character sui generis. He had lived many years without a wife, and expected to live so always. Indeed as he was the professor of mathematics, the abstraction of his science forbade his indulging in the idea of getting married. To the female sex, therefore, he showed no other regard than common politeness required. His character was purely negative. Of course he was not popular with the ladies, and they kept themselves at a distance from him. But circumstances that often bring about a match in other cases, placed him in a peculiar dilemma. It seems a whim, that a necessity was laid upon him to get married. He was one of the faculty of the college—all the other professors were married and obliged to entertain the distinguished visitors of the institution. He had always boarded. Of course it wasn't expected of him that he should ever give a party or dinner. But it began to be regarded as rather mean in him to shirk off this matter from year to year, and, "well off as he was pecuniarily," to throw upon the other members of the faculty the cost and trouble of entertaining the special friends and patrons of the college. The question was, therefore, frequently asked:

"Why doesn't the old miser, entertain some of the distinguished visitors that visit us?"

Now, our professor wasn't a miser at all, and it often troubled him to think he was so situated that he couldn't bear his part of this burden. And yet what could he do? Must he get married? And if so, to whom? He had no special regard for any one in the vicinity of the college, and no one had any special regard for him. In his younger days he had seen at school a young lady, in the city of New York, in whom he had felt a peculiar interest. But of her he hadn't heard for years. Doubtless before this time she was married or in her grave. Possibly, however, she was still living and waiting for him. Glorious thought! He was quite relieved at it, though indeed, there might be no foundation for his relief. Nevertheless he could make due inquiry. Nor could he long delay, for commencement day was at hand, only a few weeks off. It was his turn, or rather would be if he was married, to give the great dinner to the distinguished personages who would be present on the occasion. There would be the Governor of the State, and his lady—the trustees of the Institution and their friends, and others of equal repute. But who should be master of ceremonies? And who should grace the table? He could square the circle perhaps, but such a circle as this, what could he do with it? If he were only married, what a helpmeet would his wife be at such a time. And yet his wife must be a good looking, intelligent, and accomplished lady; otherwise the blank would be a blot!

Now there was a young lady in the neighborhood that the professor thought might answer. He had seen her at his boarding house, and spoken to her once or twice.

"But she may say no," and if she did, "where in creation," thought he, "could I hide my head? And then what would become of the dinner?" The Governor must have a dinner and he must have a wife. And hence he lay awake about it all night. At last as the morning broke he cried out to himself, "Contempt! She will say no! will she! What then? Other men have lived through it, and I shall. If not I shall have a clear conscience about the dinner, and a clear conscience is the main thing after all! I will write a note to Miss A., any way. It may be she will regard it favorably." So the professor sat down and wrote a note to Miss A. "Stay a minute," said he to himself, "what will the Governor think of the lady? She is handsome and polite! but can she converse? Can she entertain company?" "Doubtful," said he to himself, very doubtful; and so he tore up the note! Alas for a man on the verge of matrimony! In an hour or two, however, the Professor called on the President and said:

"I should like to be absent a few days."

"Ah," said the President "just at this time?"

"Yes, sir. I have my classes in readiness for the examination and I wish to go to New York."

"Has any death occurred in the family?" said the President.

"No, sir," said the Professor, "but I have a little matter of business that requires my immediate attention, and I thought it best to go."

"You have my best wishes," said the President, "and may you return safely and not alone."

The Professor almost smiled, but blushed rather than smiled, and left the President, and hastened to New York.

His first inquiry on his arrival there, was for Miss Adeline G., the young lady whom he had seen some years before, at school, as we have mentioned.

"Why," said the respondent, "the family has been reduced, and she is a cook. Perhaps you don't know it, sir?"

"A cook!" said he, "that is just what I want!"

"Oh!" said the lady, we thought you wanted something else, possibly."

"No, I have been half starved to death since I left New York, and I want some one to cook decently."

Well, she can do that, for she scarcely has her equal in that line in the city. Why, sir, she is a cook, par excellence."

"And how does she look?"

"She is the handsomest cook, in the city, too."

"Not quite that, I presume," said the Professor, "but is she intelligent?—I speak confidentially."

"Intelligent! She is indeed—she can converse like an angel."

"And as to manners. Is she accomplished?"

"As graceful as an actress."

"When can I see her?"

"At eight o'clock this evening."

"Couldn't I see her before that hour?"

"I think that would be the most convenient time for her to call, and to see you. She will be engaged in her duties until then."

"I will wait then. Please to tell her that Professor Mack, of Virginia, wishes to see her—an old acquaintance of hers."

"Shall I tell her that you wish to engage a cook?"

"You may tell her that I wish to see her," said the Professor.

"What name did you say?"

"Professor Mack, of Virginia, if you please, madam."

An everlasting long day was before him and he had nothing to do; not a problem to solve, except the one in hand, and that was one of a doubtful solution.

Eight o'clock at last came, and the Professor called again to see the young lady.

"A cook, indeed!" said the Professor to himself; she is a splendid woman fit to grace any parlor in the world!" But how in creation should he make known his business? Poets, they say, begin in the middle of their story; but professors of mathematics, where do they begin? Finally said the suitor, "Miss G., how would you like to go to Virginia?"

"To Virginia!" said she as if surprised. "Are you not mistaken in the person whom you wished to see?"

"No, no," said he, "don't you remember when we both attended school in Franklin street?"

"Oh," said she, "it is George Mack—I remember you well; why, I didn't know that you were alive!"

"And I have never forgotten you."

"Ah! indeed, you are very kind to remember me so long. I thought every one had forgotten me in my calamities.

"People in trouble think they are overlooked when trials overtake them; that it is too true that in our present trials are at an end. [illegible] Professor Mack, what do you mean? Why I am a mere [illegible]."

"If you have had reverses I have had successes, and have the means of making you comfortable for life."

"But you do not know my circumstances now, for I would not deceive you, George."

"It does not concern me what you are now, but what you are willing to be."

"But I have an aged mother, Professor."

"And I wish to have one she can go too."

Matters were soon arranged as to time, place, and ceremony, and the ceremony over the party were off for Virginia—the Professor pleased that he had solved the matrimonial problem so easily, and the lady that she was no longer at the world's bidding.

In the country of Virginia great ado is made for a newly married couple. Of course much was expected in the case of the Professor. But some "bird in the air" carried the story in advance, that Professor Mack had married a cook! What lady then would call upon her? What society could the F. F. V.'s of Virginia have with a cook? But the President advised his wife to call upon her out of decency, at least. If the Professor had married a cook why, he didn't know any better. All that he knew was how to solve problems in mathematics. Besides he might not have married a cook, or if he had he was well off in one respect—he could have a good table."

"Pshaw!" says the President's lady, "what does a person care about a table in comparison to caste in society?"

"Caste in society will do well enough," he replied, "but since you must eat to live, a well roasted turkey is better than a fried chicken, and a short biscuit than an ash-cake." "And what does an epicure care for ceremony? A good cup of coffee is better."

"You are no Virginian, husband, otherwise you would not say that, for anybody knows that nobility in a log cabin is better than a cook in a palace!"

"Well, call on the lady and see—theories are often good for nothing, whilst practice is the sum of perfection."

The President's called and was amazed—the cook was much her superior—and she felt it.

The other officers' ladies having heard that the President's wife had called on Mrs. Mack, were obliged according to custom to follow suit. They, too, were disappointed, for the New York lady hadn't lived in a city in vain. In mind in manner, in accomplishments she outranked them all! Besides, in respect to family she was not at all inferior—her father having had a fortune once and lost it.

Commencement day was now near at hand, and the great dinner was the one off at the Professor's. Nor was Mrs. Mack at all disconcerted about it. She had seen a thing or two before, and was fully confident in her own ability to meet the exigency.

When the time arrived, all eyes were fixed on Mrs. Mack. How could she appear in the presence of the Governor of Virginia? How in the presence of the Professors and the President? And what sort of a table would she set, and how would she grace it! Could she go through it with dignity?

Of course, all this was enough "to try men's souls," but Mrs. Mack was perfectly at home.

In etiquette—in conversation—in the arrangement of all the circumstantials and in the formalities of the occasion she showed herself equal to the duties devolving upon her, and evidently interested the Governor very much by her powers of conversation. "What a charming lady," said he to his wife, "is Mrs. Mack! and what a table she set! how well she graces it!"

"My dear husband," said she, "do you know she is a New York cook—why, she has been a mere servant for many years!"

"I know nothing about that," said he, "but if she was, I wish every other lady was a servant, and a New York cook too. We should have something to eat then, my dear, besides fried chickens and ash-cake."

"All men are not epicures like you, Governor."

"No—but if they were they would imitate the mathematical Professor, and go to New York to get a wife. A man wouldn't be compelled then to go to a saloon to get a decent dinner! He could find one at home—now a great rarity!"

THE ATTENTION OF THE BUSINESS COMMUNITY is again called to the OLD GREENBACK CASE!

HAVING BEEN COMPELLED TO ACCEPT LEGAL TENDER NOTES AT PAR since Dec. 7th, 1862, for the rent of my Handsome Brick Store, corner of Morrison and Front streets, I feel bound to announce for the benefit of the public at large, that leased the building of me on the 7th day of February, 1862, for a term of years, at which time there was no currency in vogue, and it was understood the terms were CASH. Since the date above stated I have received depreciated currency regularly, under protest for the rent of the

CITY OF PARIS STORE,

Making less than two-fifths of the real amount he agreed to pay. He had secured the building at very advantageous rates, and even were he now to comply with his contract, and pay in COIN, would be getting the best gain in the city. I make this statement to show the public what kind of a man he must be to take such advantage of the times to convert a few dollars into gold by LEGAL SWINDLING. The public can judge what it costs to have such tenants. G. W. VAUGHN.
